CANADIAN AGAIN ON RAMPAGE AS TORRENT SWELLS

Oklahoma City Threatened by Another Rise of North Canadian.

TRAFFIC INJURED

Packtown Severed by High
Waters; Capital Streets
Under Water.

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 9.—Oklahoma City's flood hazard hourly increased today as another rise reported several miles above here on the North Canadian river swept down to augment the swollen stream which for 36 hours has wrought havoc in the low lands.

The peak of the high water is believed to have been reached here shortly after midnight, but with a three foot rise surging southeastward from Canton, Blaine county. It is problematical whether the water here can recede in sufficient volume to obscure the new rise.

Scores of families have been driven from their homes by the water which stands 10 to 15 feet deep in some places. Railroad service southward from Oklahoma City has been seriously hampered, street car tracks have been swept away and the most direct artery of communication with Packtown, the packing center in the southern section of the city, has been severed.

Dwellers Abandon Homes.

Dwellers in the lowlands began abandoning their homes Saturday night before the water reached them. The stream there, normally only a few yards wide, is now a raging torrent more than half a mile in width submerging more than 100 dwellings.

Boats are being used to save the livestock, and so far as can be determined, there has been no loss of life. On Exchange avenue, the main connecting link with Packtown, streets cars are out of commission. The ferocity of the flood there equals that of the floods in the spring. The only remaining outlet southward via the road from Robinson avenue.

Here the police are operating an auto truck line for passengers at the latter's risk. The water dashing against the hub caps of the cars and probably to rise higher indicates that it may be necessary within a few hours to give up even this mode of transportation.

Light and power service to the south part is demoralized. Recent heavy rains which in some sections assumed the proportions of cloudbursts, are responsible for the new rise in the river.

Ships Rush to Assistance of Grounded Steamer Near Seattle.

(By the Associated Press)

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 9.—The steamer Kennicott, en route to Seattle from the Orient via Alaska, was aground a short distance south of Ketchikan according to S O S calls heard by the Seattle harbor radio early today. Ships in the vicinity are rushing to her aid, the harbor department stated.

The Kennicott is a cargo carrier with a tonnage of 6,010 dead weight, owned and operated by the Alaska Steamship Co., of Seattle. She is 345 feet in length and was placed in commission in 1921.

The Kennicott was located definitely at a point on the northwest shore of Queen Charlotte island off Alaska, according to a wireless message received here today by the Radio Corporation of America.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 9.—The emergency battery of the radio equipment of the steamship Kennicott is slowly playing out, according to a late wireless message received by the Federal Telegraph Co. station here. The steamer North-western is rushing to her assistance. The position of the North-western is not known.

OIL CONGRESS IS SEEKING GROWTH

President Suggests Permanent World Oil Congress be Formed.

(By the Associated Press)

TULSA, Oct. 9.—A permanent world-wide petroleum congress embracing all branches of the industry to co-operate for the advancement of all phases was outlined by President L. B. Jackson of the International Petroleum congress in his key note address to thousands of oil men here today.

The accomplishment of this aim is the principal object of the present gathering, the speaker said. He urged that complete plans for its realization be formulated. A committee on permanent organization of the congress has been appointed and will report Wednesday.

Other suggestions of President
Jackson were that the petroleum exposition be permanent, that it seek
the standardization of equipment;
that an international museum of petrology be established to preserve the history of the industry; that field workers be brought together in a more intimate social contact;
that the business be purged of
"grafting and fake oil promoters";
and that a home be established in the United States for superannuated workers of the producing fields.

W. A. Durgin, representing the federal department of commerce,
spoke on the standardization program, outlining the accomplishment of the department along this line
in other industries and urged its immediate application by manufacturers of oil equipment.

Ten other speakers presented papers on technical subjects and on the need of closer relations among the various trade units. Among them were several delegates from foreign governments who discussed the future of oil in their respective countries.

Negress Witness in Stokes Trial Admits Perjury

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Mrs. Rose Nellie Miller, a negress of Chicago, who was a principal witness for the plaintiff in the divorce suit of W.
E. D. Stokes, wealthy hotel owner,
against Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes, today admitted under cross examination by Samuel Undermeyer, Mrs. Stokes' chief counsel, that she had deliberately testified falsely in answering questions about her past.

When questioned by Mr. Under-meyer the witness declared she had been married several times but was unable to give definite dates of the marriages. At first she said she had married a man by the name of Murphy in the city hall of New York, but later under a severe cross examination by the defense
counsel retracted this statement and declared it false, admitting that she had falsified deliberately.

Lake Lost Through Irrigation.

(By the Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—The extent to which reclamation policies are remaking the map of the west is shown by the announcement that Tule Lake, measuring 120 to 150 square miles in area, has been wiped off the surface of the earth.

The lake was located in southern Oregon and northern California,
on the Klamath Reclamation project.

Rising water of Canadian Playing Havoc With Katy

With the South Canadian river still on a rampage, local Katy officials, were unable to determine when repairs could be started on the Katy bridge at Tyrola, which is suffering from the rising wall of water.

Although the pile driver is expected here today, delay will be anticipated until the flood waters of the Canadian recede sufficiently to permit the work to continue.

While only four bents of the trestle have been reported on the casualty list, flood waters have carried a large portion of the south bank of the stream along with the debris
of the swollen torrent.

EDUCATION WEEK TO BE OBSERVED HERE

Plans are being completed in Ada
for the proper observance of National Education Week, a period set aside by the proclamation of President Calvin Coolidge from a greater devotion to the cause of education.

It is planned to have a well-devised scheme of programs in the city during the week, beginning November 18, for the promotion of better educational advantages.

County Superintendent A. Floyd has received data and instruction concerning the observance for the week. The proclamation of President Coolidge reads:

"NOW THEREFORE, I, Calvin
Coolidge, President of the United States, do hereby proclaim the week beginning on the eighteenth of November, next, as National Education Week, and urge its observance
for the purpose of more liberally supporting and more effectively improving the educational facilities of our country.

"IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"DONE in the City of Washington, this twenty-sixth day of September, in the year of our Lord,
One Thousand Nine Hundred and Twenty-three, and of the Independence of the United States, the One Hundred and Forty-eighth.

Santa Fe Route to Reach Pauls Valley in Plans

Detouring of Santa Fe trains by way of Pauls Valley will be carried out for some time in order to allow the repair of track washed out near Rosedale, according to the announcement of J. H. Shackelford, Santa Fe agent here.

Shackelford stated that the new schedule would not affect the connection to Oklahoma City and would afford a direct connection with Pauls Valley, a service that has not been in use heretofore.

While this schedule will only be temporary, it is believed considerable time will be required to repair the track damaged by flood waters near Rosedale.

The new route is approximately 20 miles longer than the former route used by the Santa Fe.

CITY PAYMASTER LOOSES STRINGS

Slight Reduction of Budget
Not to Effect Affairs of Departments.

Approximately 300 warrants will be issued from the office of Charlie Deaver, city finance commissioner, before the end of the week as the first step to dispose of all outstanding warrants against the city.

The three hundred warrants spell
an exodus of thousands of dollars from the city treasury to settle all debts accrued since the end of the fiscal year, July 1.

Commissioner Deaver indicated that a large lump of the city expenditure for the year would be distributed in warrants this week, the warrants being issued in corresponding routine with the claims on file in the city finance office.

No change in the operation of the city departments will be made because of the reduction of the city budget, Deaver stated.

While the city has felt a reduction of $3,087 in the city budget for the year, this amount can be borne equally by the city departments without impairing the financial bearing of the city government, Deaver stated. The budget for the year is $69,918 against $73,005 of last year.

Salaries, supplies and office expenditures for the new year will be accounted for in the warrants issued this week.

REVELRY PERIOD NOW COMMERCIAL CLUB PLAN

Committees from the Chamber of Commerce and the Ladies Auxiliary to the same organization met this morning and laid plans for one of the greatest series of entertainments
since Columbus discovered America.
Early in the month of November, a week is to be given over to an orgy
of entertainment that will be remembered as long as Ada is a city. This is all vouched for by Ralph Waner, secretary of the Chamber.

Just what all will be done remains to be announced. But it is hinted the Memorial Hall will reverberate with the best there is in music, dramatics, indoor sports,
and the spirit of the carnival.

The money which is taken in will be used to extricate the Chamber of Commerce from its debts. "This is the time when all good men must come to the aid of their party," Waner says.

Exact plans will be given out later. Prepare you this day to have the times of your short lives, it is advised to say.

ROBBERS VISIT AGAIN AS JEWELER COUNTS LOSSES

(By the Associated Press)

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 9.—While L.
C. Larsen was sitting in his jewelry store last night figuring up just how much two bandits took when they broke into his store Saturday,
two unmasked men walked in covered him with revolvers, took $200
in cash and diamonds valued at $5, 000 and made good their escape.

His Saturday night loss was about $200.

Supplementary Vote to be Mailed State Board, Beard States

When the Pontotoc county election board made its official report to the state election board last Friday from the county vote in the special election on six amendments, no anticipation was held for a deluge
of delinquent votes.

Since the official report was made last Friday a large number of votes
have been mailed to the board, which makes a supplementary report on county returns necessary.

John Beard, chairman of the county board, stated that the Pontotoc county would probably be sent in today.

The supplementary vote favors
the legislative amendment.

NEW YORK PREPARES FOR THIRD SERIES

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Official announcement of the batting orders for tomorrow's opening game of the third successive all New York world series is expected late today.

The probable announcement will follow the final "polishing up" practice sessions this afternoon at the Yankee stadium and polo grounds.

To these work out both Managers McGraw and Huggins have summoned both well and injured or ill
members of their squads.

Although the Yankee stadium
grand stand has been sold out, Ed
Barrow, business manager of the American League club, announced that as three games slated for the park fall respectively on the opening day, on Sunday and on Columbus Day, the Yankee officials are confident that 30,000 rush seats
will not lack occupants.

Not all the reserve seats in the polo grounds have been disposed of but applications have been coming in at a rate that seems to assure that no vacancies will be in evidence when Thursday's game
gets under way.

State Sleuths Get Last Red Cent for Search for Dennis

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 9.—The last cent of the $5,000 fund appropriated by the ninth legislature for the arrest of Fred Dennis, recently returned former bank commissioner, was paid out of the treasury today.

C. C. Childers, state auditor, closed the account with warrants issued
to C. W. Wilkie and Lee Mullenix, former Oklahoma City policemen
under the Walton city administration who turned in expense accounts totaling $473.07, the exact amount remaining. According to Mullenix's account he sought the former commissioner in El Reno.

EIGHTEEN BALES COTTON GINNED YESTERDAY

Only 18 bales of cotton arrived at the county scales Monday, according to John Ward, county weigher. However, some cotton was sold in the seed and has not yet been ginned and taken to the yard.

Today it has been coming in at a lively rate and with the continuance of fair weather the figures will mount rapidly.

At 10 o'clock this morning the receipts for the season were 518
bales.

Divorce Gains On Dan Cupid For October

Today the divorce court lawyer, who tears asunder the bonds of wedlock, smiled over his victory in Pontotoc county.

For the first time in the history of the county the number of divorce petitions filed in district court have exceeded the marriage license issued clerk's office.

With nine days of the month past only two marriage licenses had been issued while four divorce petitions
had been recorded in the district court clerk's office.

While young couples trembled on the step of the matrimonial ark older heads who had viewed their marital affairs with regret brought the activities of the court to a greater intensity.

So far as the records in the district court clerk's office show, no such instance has ever existed in Pontotoc county.

Records for the year show that more divorce applications are being made this year than ever before,
while marriage license applicants
are increasing activities.

The activities of the marriage license bureau are exceptionally light
for this month.

JEWETT HEARING POSTPONED WHEN COUNSELS AGREE

Murder Trial Before Judge
Chambers Cause of Delay.

HEARING TOMORROW

Injunction to Restrain Certifying of Returns Postponed.

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 9.—The preliminary hearing for N. C. Jewett, grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan of the realm of Oklahoma, charged with riot, set for today in justice court, was postponed by agreement of counsel until tomorrow.

A similar delay of one day was also announced in the hearing of the injunction action brought by Gov. J. C. Walton to prevent the state election board from certifying
the returns from last Tuesday's special election to the secretary of state. The postponement of the injunction case was made necessary
by a murder trial in progress before Judge Tom Chambers, Sr., of the district court before whom the governor's action was brought.

J. K. Wright, county attorney,
who is prosecuting the murder case,
obtained an agreement with the Jewett attorneys to delay the hearing.

C. Whitlock and L. L. Rodhe, also charged with riot, will be given a hearing tomorrow jointly with Jewett.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 9.—

Grand Dragon N. S. Jewett highest officer of the Ku Klux Klan in Oklahoma, was to be arraigned in justice court here today for a preliminary hearing on a charge of rioting in connection with a flogging here a year ago in which he is alleged to have participated.

Jewett is the first officer of the secret organization to fall into the net spread by Gov. J. C. Walton for those responsible for mob violence and masked depredations in the state.

Grand Dragon Jewett was arrested September 21 on the basis of evidence adduced by a military court, which investigated under the governor's decree of martial law.

Testimony given by Dr. A. A.
Maupin, a local dentist, which was made public by Gov. Walton implicated Jewett as the leader of a band that abducted E. R. Merriman here on the night of March 7, 1922,
and severely flogged for alleged relations with a married woman.

Dr. Maupin said he was a member of the Klan at the time but resigned
from the organization when he learned it was responsible for the outrage, according to the testimony.

Since his arrest Jewett has been at liberty under a $1,000 bond.
Members of the state legislature
meanwhile are completing final arrangements for the special session
Thursday which will bring to a clin-
ax the governor's war on the Ku Klux Klan.

Overridden in his attempt to prevent the legislature from meeting
to consider charges against him in his official conduct, the executive ordered the special session Thursday
which is a week ahead of the date
the lawmakers had on their own initiative called to assemble.

Indications are that the legislature first will proceed with the impeachment investigation despite the governor's call for the session which specified that an exhaustive inquiry into the Ku Klux Klan be instituted.

Road Conditions Improved in All Parts of County

Roads in Pontotoc county have been repaired to the best advantage
present facilities will afford, according to county commissioners responsible for road repairs in their district.

Rural roads in the county have been graded with bridges and culverts washed out in the recent rains replaced so that roads in every part of the county are in good condition.

The Ada-Allen gravel road is being resurfaced with gravel and thus the rough surface will again be brought into use for the heavy traffic on that county artery.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Ralph Peters, president of the Long Island
railroad, died suddenly at his home in Garden City today. He was 69 years old and was to have retired
next month.

Officials of the Long Island railroad had arranged a celebration in
Mr. Peters' honor for November 17, two days before his seventieth
birthday. railroad veterans and executives from all parts of the country had been invited.

REVELRY PERIOD NOW COMMERCIAL CLUB PLAN

Committees from the Chamber of Commerce and the Ladies Auxiliary to the same organization met this morning and laid plans for one of the greatest series of entertainments since Columbus discovered America. Early in the month of November, a week is to be given over to an orgy of entertainment that will be remembered as long as Ada is a city. This is all vouchered for by Ralph Waner, secretary of the Chamber.

Just what all will be done remains to be announced. But it is hinted the Memorial Hall will reverberate with the best there is in music, dramatics, indoor sports, and the spirit of the carnival.

The money which is taken in will be used to extricate the Chamber of Commerce from its debts. "This is the time when all good men must come to the aid of their party," Waner says.

Exact plans will be given out later. Prepare you this day to have the times of your short lives, it is advised to say.

ROBBERS VISIT AGAIN AS JEWELER COUNTS LOSSES

(By the Associated Press)
OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 9.—While L. C. Larsen was sitting in his jewelry store last night figuring up just how much two bandits took when they broke into his store Saturday, two unmasked men walked in covered him with revolvers, took $200 in cash and diamonds valued at $5,000 and made good their escape. His Saturday night loss was about $200.

Divorce Gains On Dan Cupid For October

Today the divorce court lawyer, who tears asunder the bonds of wedlock, smiled over his victory in Pontotoc county.

For the first time in the history of the county the number of divorce petitions filed in district court have exceeded the marriage license is court clerk's office.

With nine days of the month past only two marriage licenses had been issued while four divorce petitions had been recorded in the district court clerk's office.

While young couples trembled on the step of the matrimonial ark older heads who had viewed their marital affairs with regret brought the activities of the court to a greater intensity.

So far as the records in the district court clerk's office show, no such instance has ever existed in Pontotoc county.

Records for the year show that more divorce applications are being made this year than ever before, while marriage license applicants are increasing activities.

The activities of the marriage license bureau are exceptionally light for this month.

Murder Trial Before Judge
Chambers Cause of Delay.

HEARING TOMORROW

Injunction to Restrain Certifying of Returns Postponed.

(By the Associated Press)
OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 9.—The preliminary hearing for N. C. Jewett, grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan of the realm of Oklahoma, charged with riot, set for today in justice court, was postponed by agreement of counsel until tomorrow.

A similar delay of one day was also announced in the hearing of the injunction action brought by Gov. J. C. Walton to prevent the state election board from certifying the returns from last Tuesday's special election to the secretary of state. The postponement of the injunction case was made necessary by a murder trial in progress before Judge Tom Chambers, Sr., of the district court before whom the governor's action was brought.

J. K. Wright, county attorney, who is prosecuting the murder case, obtained an agreement with the Jewett attorneys to delay the hearing.

C. Whitlock and L. L. Rodhe, also charged with riot, will be given a hearing tomorrow jointly with Jewett.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 9.—Grand Dragon N. S. Jewett, highest officer of the Ku Klux Klan in Oklahoma, was to be arraigned in justice court here today for a preliminary hearing on a charge of plotting in connection with a flooding here a year ago in which he is alleged to have participated.

Jewett is the first officer of the secret organization to fall into the net spread by Gov. J. C. Walton for those responsible for mob violence and masked depredations in the state.

Grand Dragon Jewett was arrested September 21 on the basis of evidence adduced by a military court which investigated under the governor's decree of martial law.

Testimony given by Dr. A. A. Maupin, a local dentist, which was made public by Gov. Walton implicated Jewett as the leader of a band that abducted E. R. Merriman here on the night of March 7, 1922, and severely flogged for alleged relations with a married woman.

Dr. Maupin said he was a member of the Klan at the time but resigned from the organization when he learned it was responsible for the outrage, according to the testimony.

Since his arrest Jewett has been at liberty under a $1,000 bond.

Members of the state legislature meanwhile are completing final arrangements for the special session Thursday which will bring to a climax the governor's war on the Ku Klux Klan.

Overridden in his attempt to prevent the legislature from meeting to consider charges against him in his official conduct, the executive ordered the special session Thursday which is a week ahead of the date the lawmakers had on their own initiative called to assemble.

Indications are that the legislature first will proceed with the impeachment investigation despite the governor's call for the session which specified that an exhaustive inquiry into the Ku Klux Klan be instituted.

Road Conditions Improved in All Parts of County

Roads in Pontotoc county have been repaired to the best advantage present facilities will afford, according to county commissioners responsible for road repairs in their districts.

Rural roads in the county have been graded with bridges and culverts washed out in the recent rains replaced so that roads in every part of the county are in good condition.

The Ada-Alton gravel road is being resurfaced with gravel and thus the rough surface will again be brought into use for the heavy traffic on that county artery.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Ralph Peters, president of the Long Island railroad, died suddenly at his home in Garden City today. He was 69 years old and was to have retired next month.

Officials of the Long Island railroad had arranged a celebration in Mr. Peters' honor for November 17, two days before his seventieth birthday, railroad veterans and executives from all parts of the country had been invited.

The Branding Iron

"I'm not dancing, Mr. Moreno," she answered.

"You know my name," said Moreno, "and I don't know yours. I've been on Mr. Yarnall's ranch for a month. Why haven't I seen you?"

"For not looking," I suppose," she had given him that one startled glance, and now she had turned her eyes back to the dancers and were a grim, contemptuous glare. Her speeches, though they were out into short, crisp words, were full of music of a sharp, metallic quality different from the tone of her other speech, but quite as beautifully expressive.

"May I smoke?" asked Moreno. He was still smiling his charming smile and watching her out of the corners of his eyes.

"I'm not hindering you any," said she.

Moreno smiled deeper. He took some time making and lighting his cigarette. "You don't smoke yourself?" he asked.

"No."

"Nor dance?"

"No."

"Nor behave prettily to polite young men?"

Again the woman looked at him. "You ain't so awful young, are you?" He laughed aloud.

"I amuse you, don't I? Well, I'm not always so ill-favored funny," drawled the creature, lowering her head a little.

"No, I've heard that you're not. You rather run things here, I gather; got the boys under control?"

"Did Mr. Yarnall tell you that?"

"Yes. I've just in the last few minutes remembered who you are. You're Jane. You work for the outfit, and Yarnall was telling us the other night how he sent one of the boys out for a cook, the last one, a man having been beaten up, and how the boy had brought you back behind him on his saddle. He said you'd kept order for him ever since, were better than a foreman. Who was the man you threw out tonight?"

"Perhaps," drawled Jane, "he was just a fellow who asked too many questions?"

Again Moreno's smile deepened into his cheeks. "You needn't pardon me, Miss Jane," he said in his charming, cultivated voice. "You see, I've had a great misfortune. I've never been in your West. I've lived in New York, where good manners haven't time or space to flourish. I had the least intention of being impertinent. Do you want me to go?"

He moved as if to leave her, and she did not lift a finger to detain him.

"I'm not going," he said as you please," she said with a soft indifference.

"Oh," said Moreno, looking back at her. "I don't stay where people are not early."

She gave him an extraordinarily intelligent look. "I should say that's the only place you'd be wanting to stay in at all—where you're not exactly urged to come," she said.

Moreno flushed and his lids flickered. He was for an instant absurdly inclined to anger and made two or three steps away. But he came back. He bowed and spoke as he would have spoken to a great lady, suavely, deferentially.

"Goodnight. I wish I could think that you have enjoyed our talk as greatly as I have, Miss Jane. I should very much like to be allowed to repeat it. May I be stupidly personal and tell you that you are very beautiful?" He bowed, gave her an upward look and went out, finding his way cleverly among the dancers.

Outside, in the moonlit court, he stood, threw back his head and laughed, not loudly but consumedly. He was remembering her white face of mute astonishment. She looked almost as if his compliment had given her sharp pain.

Moreno was laughing to his room in the opposite wing. He wanted to describe the interview to his wife.

Betty Moreno was sitting in a rustic chair before an open fire, smoking a cigarette. She was a short woman, slenderly, even narrowly built, as to appear overgrown, and she was a mature woman so immaturely shaped and featured as to appear hardly more than a child. Her curly russet hair was parted at the side, her wide, long-lashed eyes were set far apart, her nose was really a finely modeled snub—more, a boy's nose even to a light sprinkling of freckles—and her mouth was provocatively the soft, red mouth of a sorrowful child. She lounged far down in her chair, her slight legs, clad in riding-breeches of perfect cut, stretched out straight, her limber arms along the arms of the chair, her chin sunk on her flat chest, and her big, clear eyes staring into the fire. It was an odd figure of a wife for Jasper Moreno, a Jew of thirty-eight, producer and manager of plays.

When Betty Kane had run away with him there had been lamentation and rage in the houses of Kane and Moreno. To the pride of an old He-brown family, the marriage even of this wandering son with a Gentile was fully as degrading as to the pride of the old Tory family was the marriage with a Jew. Her perverse Gaelic blood, on fire with the insults heaped upon her lover, Betty, seventeen years old, romantic, clever, would have walked over flint to give her hand to him. That was ten years ago. Now, when Jasper came into her room, she drew her quick brows together, puffed at her cigarette, and blinked as though she was looking at something distasteful and at the same time rather alarming.

"Have they stopped dancing, Jasper?" she asked in a voice that was at once brusque and soft.

Jasper rubbed his hands delightedly. He was still merry, and came to stand

"Have You Ever Noticed Jane, Who Cooks for the Outfit, Betty?"

near the fire, looking down at her with eyes entirely kind and admiring.

"Have you ever noticed Jane, who cooks for the outfit, Betty?"

"Yes, she's horrible."

"She's extraordinary, and I mean to get hold of her for Luck's play. Did you read it?"

"Yes."

"The play is absolutely dependent on the leading part and I have found it simply impossible to fill. Now, here's a woman of extraordinary grace and beauty—"

Betty lifted skeptical eyebrows, twisted her limber mouth, but forbore to contradict.

"And with a magical voice—a woman who not only looks the part, but is it. You remember Luck's heroine?"

Betty flicked off the ash of her cigarette and looked away. "A savage, isn't she? The man has her tamed, takes her back to London, and there gives her cause for jealousy and she springs on him—yes, I remember. This woman, Jane, is absolutely without education and hasn't a notion of acting, I suppose."

Jasper rubbed his hands with increased delight. "Not a notion and she murders the king's English. But she is Luck's savage and—in spite of your eyebrows, Betty—she is beautiful. I can school her. It will take money, no end of patience, but I can do it. It's one of the things I can do. But, of course, there's the fatal difficulty of persuading her to try it."

"That oughtn't to be any difficulty at all. Of course she'll jump at the chance."

"I'm not so sure. She was ready to throw me out of the kitchen tonight. She is really a virago. Do you know what one of the men said about her?"

Jasper laughed and imitated the gentle western drawl. "Jane's plumb movin' to me. She's about halfway between 'You go to h—' and 'You take me in your arms to rest.'"

Betty smiled. Her smile was vastly more mature than her appearance. It was clever and cynical and cold. The Oriental, looking down at her, lost his merriment.

"Do you feel better, dear?" he asked timidly. "Do you think you will be able to go back next week?"

She stood up as he came nearer and walked over to the little table that played the part of dressing table under a wavy mirror. "Oh, yes, I am quite well. I don't think the doctors have much sense. I'm sure I hadn't anything like a nervous breakdown. I was just tired out."

Jasper drew back the hand whose touch she had eluded, and nervously, his long, supple fingers a little unsteady, lighted a cigarette. At that moment he did not look like a spider, but like a lover who has been hurt. Betty could see in the mirror a distorted image of his dejected gracefulness, but, entirely unmoved, she put up her thin, brown hands and began to take the pins out of her hair.

"I like your Jane experiment," she said. "Let me know how you get on with it and whether I can help. I shall have to turn in now. I'm dead beat. Yarnall took me halfway up the mountain and back. Goodnight."

Jasper looked at her, then pressed his lips into a straight line and went to the door which led from her bedroom to his. He said "Goodnight" in a low tone, glanced at her over his shoulder, and went out.

Betty waited an instant, then slowly unlaced her heavy, knee-high boots, took them off, and began to walk to and fro on stocking feet, hands clasped behind her back. With her curly hair all about her face and shoulders, she looked like a wild, extravagantly naughty schoolgirl, a girl in a wicked temper, a rebel against authority. In fact, she was rejoicing that this horrible enforced visit to the West was all but over. One week more! She was almost at an end of her endurance. How she hated the beautiful white night outside, those mountain peaks, the sound of that rapid river, the stillness of sagebrush, the voice of the big pine! What a malevolent trick of fate that Jasper should have brought her to Wyoming, that the doctor had insisted upon at least a month of just this life. "Take her west," he had said, and Betty, lying limp and white in her bed, her small head sunk into the pillow, had jerked from head to foot. "Take her west. I know a ranch in Wyoming—Yarnall's. She'll get outdoor exercise, tonic air, sound sleep, release from all these pestiferous details, like a cloud of flies, that sting women's nerves to death. Don't pay any attention to whether she likes it or not. Let her behave like a naughty child, let her kick and scream and cry. Pick her up, Moreno, and carry her off. Do you hear? Don't let her make you change your plans." The doctor had seen his patient's convulsive jerk. "Pack her up. Make your reservations and go straight to Buck Yarnall's ranch, Lazy-Y—that's his brand, I believe—Middle Fork, Wyoming. I'll send him a wire. He knows me. She needs all outdoors to run about in. She needs jogging around all day through the sagebrush on a cow-pony in that sun; she needs the smell of a camp-fire—Gad! wish I could get back to it myself."

Betty, having heard this out, began to laugh. She laughed till they gave her something to keep her quiet. But, except for that laughter, she had made no protest whatever; she did not "kick and scream and cry." In fact, though she looked like a child, she was not at all inclined to such exhibitions. This doctor had not seen her through her recent ordeal. Two years before her breakdown, Jasper had been terribly hurt in an automobile accident, and Betty had come to him at the hospital, had waited, as white as a snowflake, for the result of the examination. They had told her emphatically that there was no hope. Jasper Moreno could not live for more than a few days. She must not allow herself to hope. He might or might not regain consciousness.

Betty had listened with her white, rigid, child face, had thanked them, had gone home. There in her exquisite, little sitting room above Central park, she had sat at her desk and written a few lines on gray note paper. "Jasper is dying," she had written. "By the time you get this, he will be dead. If you can forgive me for having failed in courage last year, come back. What I have been to you before I will be again, only, this time we can love openly. Come back."

Then she had dropped her head on the desk and cried. Afterward she had addressed her letter to a certain Prosper Gael. The letter went to Wyoming.

Three days later Jasper regained consciousness and began slowly to return to health. He had the tenacious vitality of his race, and, in his own spirit, an iron will to live. He kept Betty beside his bed for hours, and held her cold hand in his long sensitive one, and he stared at her under his lashes till she thought she must go mad. But she did not. She nursed him through an interminable convalescence. She received Prosper, very early in this convalescence, by her husband's bed, and Jasper had murmured gratitude for the emotion that threatened to overwhelm his friend. It was not till some time—an extraordinarily long time—after Moreno's complete recovery that she had snapped like a broken icicle. And then, forsooth, they had sent her to Wyoming to get back her health!

A Michigan motor truck company has just designed a trailer with which they moved a village 11 miles.

Having paced away some of her restlessness, Betty stopped by the cabin window and pushed aside one of the short, calico curtains. She looked out on the court. A tall woman had just pulled up a bucket of water from the well and had emptied it into a pitcher. She finished, let the bucket drop with a whirr, and a crash, and raised her head. For a second she and Jasper Moreno's wife looked at each other. Betty nodded, smiled, and drew the curtain close.

CHAPTER II

Jane.

After that night, there began a sort of persecution, skillfully conducted by Jasper and Betty, against the ferocity of Jane. It was a persecution impossible to imagine in any other setting, even the social simplicity of Lazy-Y, found itself a trifle amused. For Jasper, the stately Jewish figure, would carry pails of water for Jane from the well to the kitchen, would help her in the vegetable garden, and to straighten out her recalcitrant stove-pipe; Betty would put on an apron a mile too large, to wash dishes and shell peas. She would sit on the kitchen table swinging her long, childlike legs and chatter amiably. Jasper talked, too, to the virago, talked delightfully, about horses and dogs—he had a charming gift of humorous observation—talked about hunting and big-game shooting, about trapping, about travel, and, at last, about plays. Undoubtedly Jane listened. Sometimes she laughed. Once in a while she ejaculated, musically, "Well!" Occasionally she swore.

One afternoon he met her riding home from an errand to a neighboring ranch, and, turning his horse, rode with her. In worn corduroy skirt, flannel shirt, and gray sombrero, she looked like a handsome, haggard boy, and, that afternoon, there was a certain unusual softness in her eyes, and her mouth had relaxed a little from its bitterness. Perhaps it was the beauty of a clear, keen summer day; without doubt, also, she was touched by the courteous pleasure of his greeting and by his giving up his ride in order to accompany her. She even went from her silence and, for the first time, really talked to him. And she spoke, too, in a new manner, using her beautiful voice with beautiful carefulness. It was like a master-musician who, after a long illness, takes up his beloved instrument and tentatively tests his shaken powers. Jasper had much ado to keep his surprise to himself, for the rough ranch girl could speak pure enough English if she would.

MARKET MILLIONS DEMAND SAFETY

Boys no Longer Employed to Transport Fortunes in Street Buying.

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Stories of the theft of stocks and bonds by immature youths, which a few years ago vied for frontpage positions in the daily newspapers, appear only infrequently now.

The answer is found in the almost universal absence of boys and young men in the roles of runners and messengers for the investment house of lower Broadway, Wall and Broad Streets. The small satchels and portfolios containing valuable securities which constantly are being exchanged between investment houses no longer are entrusted to beardless boys. Instead husky men, the majority veterans of the New York police and fire department, have been employed as messengers.

A canvass of financial institutions in New York discloses that nearly 1,000 former policemen and firemen now are on the payrolls of these houses. Many of them have been retired on pensions by the municipal departments.

Before the war great care was exercised in the employment of runners. Such employees usually were youngsters and the pay was small. So careful, however, were employers in their selection that only occasionally would one of them run away with the securities entrusted to their care, or return empty-handed to report a fake hold-up.

With the war, conditions were changed. It became more and more difficult to obtain boys for the position of messenger. Activities brought on by the war paid larger wages and quickly attracted much of the boy supply. Investment houses had to take what they could get.

Then came an epidemic of messenger-thefts, some of them involving securities valued at more than $1,000,000. Stock and bond houses sought some way to stop their heavy losses and gradually employed older men for the places. Today, except in the case of a few small houses or in emergencies when the regular staff of runners is insufficient, no boys are employed for these responsible, though comparatively small, paying jobs.

Before an absorbed and sympathetic audience, Mrs. Wallace Reid's great picture, "Human Wreckage," warning against the menacing evil of narcotic addiction, was shown at the American Theatre last night.

If the response and white-souled interest given the picture by Ada people is an indication, the film should do a great deal in arousing the people of the nation to action in putting down this monstrous curse.

As the gripping story of lawyer MacFarlanes' fight against himself and the forces of dope, portrayed by the powerful actor, James Kirkwood, unraveled upon the screen, the spectators attained a full realization of the heinousness of the narcotic problem. Delicately handled, free from all that is gruesome, pounding home truth after truth, "Human Wreckage" is undoubtedly a picture that will live for years to come.

Mrs. Reid's sincerity is the outstanding feature of the entire production, and the superb heights of pathos and deep understanding which she achieves are such as only a person who feels the seriousness of it all could have revealed. Among all her successes upon the stage and screen, Dorothy Davenport-Rid never lived a part so genuinely as that of the wife of the prominent lawyer addict.

James Kirkwood, in the role of which repression and mental anguish are the significant characteristics, is an old artist whose vital force reaches out from the screen to grip even the most indifferent. He has easily equalled, if not outdone, in "Human Wreckage," his brilliant work in the sensational New York stage success of the age, "The Fool."

On Monday night the Forum Literary society held its third regular meeting. A very creditable program was given and members were very enthusiastic over the future of the society. The program consisted of musical selections and a series of well chosen extemporaneous speeches.

New members were accepted into the society and necessary business was taken up. Mr. Zimmerman, the society sponsor gave a short talk complimenting the society on its progressive spirit and expressing a desire to obtain more valuable members.

"To think on your feet," is one of the highest marks of culture even greater than the works of the writer and poet for the writer and poet must wait for their moods to accomplish anything noteworthy. The public speaker, however, must rise up in cases of emergency and make a creditable talk. The Forum is endeavoring to establish this mark of culture in each of its members by eradicating nervousness and by aiding them to become familiar with the topic of the day. A higher grade of music is obtained by the members in their endeavors to please the society.

PITCHING STARS
YANKEE HOPE NOW

Hurling Aces Expected to Bear Prominent Role in Series.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—In their third attempt to win the world's baseball championship the New York Yankees will be aided by a staff of pitchers rated second to none in either of the major leagues.

Herbert J. Pennock, left hander; Samuel Pond Jones, right hander, and J. Robert Shawkey, right hander, have been the Yankees' three best bets on the hurling mound. Waite Hoyt has had a good season, finishing well up on the winning side and Leslie Joseph Bush, while erratic at times, won a majority of his games. Carl Mays, the underhand flinger, was not up to his best form and had little to do.

It is unlikely that Mays will be started in the series, and it is probable that Bush, the fork-ball man may be used only in emergency. Pennock, Jones, Shawkey and Hoyt appear as likely mainstays and may work in that order.

An interesting sidelight in connection with the Yankees hurling corps is that every one of them first emerged to the limelight of stardom with the Boston Red Sox or the Philadelphia Athletics.

Pennock, who led the American League pitchers through the 1923 season, became a member of Connie Mack's Athletics in 1912 and remained with the team until 1915 when he went to the Red Sox. He was acquired by the Yankees from the Boston club in a trade last Spring in exchange for several youngsters.

Jones, called "Sad Sam" played with Cleveland in 1914 and 1915 but 1916 found him with the Red Sox, where he remained until 1921. The Yankee trademen were busy again that year and "Sad Sam" became a New Yorker. He wasn't at his best in 1922, but 1923 brought him back to the top and he has done everything in the pitching line, including a no-hit game against the Athletics and some others almost as good.

Shawkey was a member of the Athletics from 1913 to 1915. He came to the Yankees in 1915 when Colonels Ruppert and Huston began building up their star combination and has been a regular ever since. His pitching arm worked exceptionally well this year.

Hoyt was taken fresh from high school in Brooklyn in 1918 and made a New York Giant. He warmed benches for McGraw and became a Red Sox in 1919. In 1921 he donned a Yankee uniform and was one of the stars of the season. He won two games and lost a close one in the 1921 world's series.

He was more or less of an in-and-out last year but regained some of his great form in 1923.

Bush, a Mackman from 1912 to 1917 and a Red Stocking from 1918 to 1921, became a Yankee in 1922 in another New York-Boston trade. He was a star of stars in the 1922 season for the Yankees but a surprising failure in the world's series with the Giants.

Mays, with the Red Sox from 1915 to 1919, came to New York for the 1920 season.

CONTRACT LET TO ERECT BUILDINGS

Medical and Engineering Buildings to be Erected at O. U.

NORMAN, Oct. 9.—Kreipe and Shaefer company of Oklahoma City were recently awarded contracts by members of the state board of affairs for the construction of new medical and engineering buildings at the University of Oklahoma for which appropriations of $100,000 each were made by the ninth legislature, according to J. H. Felgar, dean of the college of engineering.

Construction of the buildings will be started at once and the structures are expected to be completed next spring Dean Felgar stated.

The Engineering building will be constructed on the unit plan. The first unit will be built directly east of the geology building and will face the west. There will be a west and north entrance. The structure will be 50 by 100 feet and will be two stories high.

The engineers' new home will be of the collegiate gothic style and is to be built of brick with limestone trimming. The basement is to be large and spacious. The first floor is to be used for recitation rooms, engineering library and offices, while drafting rooms for seniors, two recitation rooms and an auditorium will be located on the second floor. The floors are to be of maple; the woodwork of oak.

STUDENTS GIVEN
REINS AT A-M

Students Senate Take Charge of College Details at Installation.

STILLWATER, Okla., Oct. 9.—(Special)—The reigns of student government at Stillwater, the A. and M. college of Oklahoma, were taken up by the student senate this week, immediately after the senate members and officers received their oaths at a special convocation of the entire student body.

A special election is to be held at another convocation early next week, if present plans work out, according to Leo F. Gilstrap, president of the senate. The offices to be filled are those of editor of the Orange and Black, student newspaper, and one senate member from each of the two upper classes.

The oaths of office were administered by Dr. Bradford Knapp, president of the college. The senators were elected just before the end of the spring quarter, four months ago. The senate did not function while summer school was in session.

Gilstrap, president of the senate, is from Chandler. Other officers are Daniel Arnold of Stillwater, vice president, and Madeline Bradley of Oklahoma City, secretary and treasurer.

Members representing the senior class are Loyd Beeler of Yukon, Edgar Crutcheff of Stillwater, Lynn Reid of Stillwater and James Humphrey of Kingfisher. Representing the junior class are Charles Jester of Snyder, George Connor of Sapulpa and Henderson Coke of Eldorado. Sophomore members of the senate are Maxine Dusch of Stillwater and Jack Lincoln of Sand Springs. Freshmen have no representation in the senate.

Madeline Bradley, secretary and treasurer of the senate, was editor of the Orange and Black last year, has edited several numbers of the paper this year, and is first candidate to announce for the position.

STATES COTTON CROP TO NEAR MILLION BALE MARK

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 9.—Oklahoma's 1923 cotton yield will be 945,000 bales, according to what he terms a "conservative estimate" made by John A. Whitehurst, president of the state board of agriculture. The estimate was based on a condition of 49 per cent of normal. Mr. Whitehurst said. He stated that definite production figures will depend on the date of the first frosts in the state.

Production last year was 627,000 bales and the year before was 481,000 bales, Mr. Whitehurst recalled.

Dike Breaks and Florida Town is Now Under Water

MOOREHAVEN, Fla., Oct. 9.—The dike in front of the city of Moorehaven broke at 7 o'clock this morning due to heavy pressure of a northeast wind. The break is reported under control, but water is rising rapidly over the city. Water has entered several stores and merchants are removing their goods.

The dike was built to protect the city from overflow waters from Lake Okeechobee upon the edge of which the city is situated. State and local officers have been watching the water level of the lake for some weeks anticipating a rise. Numbers of little towns ring the lake's edge.

Children's Fall Wear
Points to Smartness

The pride of children was evidently considered by designers, like it was considered in the making of garments for women. Coats, Dresses and Hats are very jaunty affairs, both for tiny tots and older girls. All are moderately priced.

Coats Which Charm
Youthful Modes

When little tots see these jaunty affairs their eyes will open wide with eagerness to put right on and wear. Materials are from perfect yardage of Bolivia, Polo, Velour, Suedene and Mixtures, which are trimmed very adeptly with furs, embroideries, buttons and leather. Plaid coats, as well as plain browns, blues and black are shown in versatile stylings. Sizes 2 to 16.

Prices range from

HATS	MIDDIES
For children there are the Smart Madge Evans and Royal lines that show velvets, duvetynes, felts and scratch Velours. Styles, roll brims, pokes, bonnet shapes and others trimmed with ribbons, silks and streamers. Colors of brown, black, blue and red. Also hat and scarf sets—	Goody Middies of Ladies Home Journal fame are quite practical and dressy affairs for school wear. They are trimmed with braids in sailor fashion, and are made in infallible colors, green, red, blue and checked woolen materials. In sizes to 22 years. Priced at

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

EVERY DAY:—This is the day which the Lord hath made; we will rejoice and be glad in it.—Psalm 118-24.

TEACHING THRIFT.

The scope of the work done by the public schools of America has been greatly widened during the past few years but nothing that has been added, to our way of thinking is more important than the lessons in thrift which are taught by providing savings banks for the convenience of the pupils.

Several hundred schools have established these and thousands of children are now regular depositors. It is reported that the combined deposits are now close to $10,000,000. This is in deed a highly creditable showing.

Americans have never been noted for thrift. They have always been notoriously improvident, content to let each day take care of itself without taking thought for the rainy day that is always ahead and is sure to arrive sooner or later. By beginning with the children the coming generation can be made far more thrifty than any previous one. With an account once started and the child taught to take a pride in it the habit of denying one's self needless luxuries and laying up something all along there is hope for a better state of affairs in the future. Along with this lesson comes one in the investment of money. When the child learns how money can reproduce itself and earn interest while he sleeps he will keep pushing his account and study financial problems in a manner that will mean much to him in his future life.

Reports indicate that considerable oil prospecting is under way along the shores of the Red Sea and in the vicinity of Mt. Sinai where Moses received the Ten Commandments. Considerable production has already been found in Egypt. A story is told about the discovery in Egypt which, if true, gives one a pointer on how far John D. Rockefeller can see an opportunity. According to this story in reading his Bible he noted that it described the basket in which the infant Moses was hidden in the bulrushes of the Nile as being coated with pitch, which is another name for asphalt. John D. reasoned that if asphalt were present in that country there must also be oil. Accordingly the Standard Oil company made a test and found that Mr. Rockefeller's conclusion was correct. And yet some people wonder how he ever managed to become so wealthy. No doubt great opportunities are lying all about us but we are not as quick to see them as the oil magnate.

Josephus Daniels lays the brilliant Turkish diplomatic victory over the European nations at the Lausanne conference to the greed of these nations for oil. Some oil is produced in Turkey and by using the possibility of still more as bait and making private agreements with the various nations regarding oil concessions prior to the conference the wily Turk was able to play one nation against the other and win the game, according to Mr. Daniels' view. Whether he is correct or not oil has come to be a most important factor in the affairs of the world. With autos, engines, locomotives and steamers all using immense quantities and with the prospect of still more being needed, every nation wants to insure itself a supply for the future. Of course it may prove that there is very little in Turkey after all, in which case the Turk will have another laugh coming.

It is report that Colonel Harvey, ambassador to Great Britain, is to return to the United States a private citizen a few months hence. No specific reason is given for his coming, but we have our suspicions that President Coolidge has seen enough of his breaks to come to the conclusion that he needs a change of climate. Harvey, who dearly loves publicity, has managed to keep himself in the spotlight but no one envies him the reputation he has won by so doing. We have never heard of a man posted on governmental affairs who champions Harvey as being a successful diplomat. What diplomatic transactions of importance that have taken place since his appearance on the scene have been through other channels instead of through his office.

The soviet government reports that great progress is being made in stamping out illiteracy in Russia. Only a few years ago 80 per cent of the population could not read or write. Now, it is claimed, the number has been cut to a minimum and the work is still going on. That is something the soviet can be commended for, if true. There is hope for the nation if the people can read for themselves. Even though the press is bridled, the people will learn much and will often read things circulated in secret that may cause them to think.

Tulsa is forgetting all about the unpleasantness of martial law this week in the great petroleum congress and exhibition that is being pulled off. The oil industry has grown to mammoth proportions in recent years and Oklahoma is intensely interested in every phase of the game.

Only a fanatic looks upon every man who does not agree with him as a crook or a fool. The man of brains is willing to let the other fellow have his own opinion if he cannot be convinced by logical reasoning.

Marriage Vs Divorce

WASHINGTON, D. C. Oct. 9.—The Department of Commerce announces that, according to returns received, there were in Oklahoma, for the calendar year 1922, 26,755 marriages performed and 5,564 divorces granted. For the calendar year 1916, the last year for which these statistics were collected by the Bureau of the Census, 20,049 marriages and 3,693 divorces were reported.

The statistics of marriages and divorces for 1922 were furnished by the Court Clerk of each county. The figures are preliminary and subject to correction.

The Forum of the Press

Retracing Our Political Footsteps.

(Farm and Ranch)

One of the paramount questions of the day is this: Was the government created for the folks, or were the folks created for the government? Several hundred thousand persons—about twenty times as much as at the beginning of the century are employed by the federal administration, it is said. How many others are engaged in looking after state, county and municipal affairs is a matter for one of exuberant imagination. It is beginning to look as though, while it may not be literally possible for every boy to become president, it will presently be feasible for every American to become an office-holder of lesser rank. So, it would indeed seem apparent that the new generations are being created for the government service—and the proportionately smaller number who remain on the outside are to be called upon to foot the increasingly large bills.

Eventually we'll be right where we started: Everyone will be holding an office, and contributing to the salaries of his fellow office holders. Everyone will be working just so much, and loafing just so much. Everybody will be cursing the government the same as usual, wishing that he could let go of his patronage job and yet afraid to relinquish it. Will this be pure socialism, or will it be pure nonsense?

Of course, it is nery to suggest such a thing, but might it not be best to retrace our political footsteps? Might it not be sensible to make of our National Government a mere convenience for carrying on the necessary public business that properly falls neither to the states, the counties nor the townships? Might it not be well to make of the government an unobtrusive aid rather than a deterrent? No one except the politicians and the federal employees ought to object to such a retrogression. Lets help the cause along before the rest of us yield to the temptation and go to work for Uncle Sam!

ORDINANCE NO. 498

AN ORDINANCE LEVYING ASSESSMENTS FOR THE PAVING AND OTHERWISE IMPROVING OF STREET IMPROVEMENT DISTRICT NO. 13, SAME BEING NORTH FRANCIS AVENUE FROM THE SOUTH LINE OF TENTH STREET TO THE NORTH LINE MAIN STREET, AND THE EAST HALF OF SOUTH FRANCIS AVENUE FROM THE SOUTH LINE OF MAIN STREET TO THE CENTER LINE OF TWELFTH STREET, AND THENCE SOUTH FRANCIS AVENUE TO THE CENTER LINE OF ALLEY BETWEEN FOURTEENTH AND FIFTEENTH STREETS, TOGETHER WITH STREET INTERSECTIONS AND ALLEY CROSSINGS IN THE CITY OF ADA, PONTOTOC COUNTY, OKLAHOMA; AND DECLARING AN EMERGENCY.

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS OF THE CITY OF ADA, PONTOTOC COUNTY, OKLAHOMA.

SECTION 1. Whereas, the Board of Appraisers heretofore appointed by resolution to appraise and apportion the benefits resulting from the paving, grading, curbing, draining and otherwise improving of the street described in the title of this ordinance to the several lots and tracts of land liable to assessment for the payment of the cost of such improvements which costs have been ascertained to be the sum of Fourteen Thousand Seven Hundred Eighty-Seven and 39-100 Dollars, ($14,787.39;) have performed their duties according to law as such appraisers, and have returned and filed with the City Clerk of said City, the reports of their appraisal and apportionment; and Whereas, after filing the same, he Board of Commissioners did appoint a time for the holding of the session or such Board of Commissioners as a Board of Review to hear and consider any and all complaints or objections concerning such appraisal and apportionment and caused due notice of such session to be published as provided by law, and in pursuance of such action and publications, the Board of Commissioners duly convened as such Reviewing Board on the 5th day of October, 1923, all as shown by minutes of meeting of said Board of Commissioners of the City of Ada, Oklahoma; and Whereas, at said session the Board of Commissioners as a Board of Review heard all complaints and objections made to such appraisements and assessments as returned by the Board of Appraisers and did adjust and review such assessments and apportionments as they found unjust, erroneous, or not in accordance with the benefits accorded to such lots, tracts, and parcels of ground affected by such improvements; and thereafter did confirm such apportionments and appraisements so reviewed, adjusted and corrected by said Board of Commissioners in manner and form as required and authorized by law; and

Whereas, all legal requirements have been fully complied with to authorize the levying of assessments to pay the costs of said improvements against the several lots and tracts of land liable to such assessments;

Now therefore, there shall be and there is hereby levied and assessed against the several respective lots and tracts of land of said Street Improvement District described in the title of this ordinance with the amounts respectively stated in said report of the Board of Appraisers as reviewed and confirmed and as follows, to-wit:

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—No, Indeed! No Half-Way Measures for Father

BY F. LEIPZIGER

SCREEN PLAY OF "BRASS" IS SUPERB

Spellbound is the adjective descriptive of the state of mind of the audience that beheld "Brass" at its opening yesterday at the McSwain Theatre, where it will be shown throughout the week. The ideal combination of a good corking story and an all-star cast contributes to this, especially the acting of Monte Blue, the leading featured player, a tall strapping youth of boundless personality and superb powers.

Many came expecting an unusual treat, from the fact that "Brass" is a screen adaptation of the best seller of the same name from the pen of Charles Norris. Needless to say they were not disappointed. Warner Brothers, in producing it, have kept its well-knit story, and the characters live on the silver screen with the intensity of real life. With its fascinating theme, the picture is of interest to young and old alike, to those happily married, and those who find marriage unfortunate, to people about to take the plunge as well as those who have taken it already.

SURE IT DOES GOOD

Thedford's Black-Draught Liver Medicine (Vegetable) Praised by the Head of a Louisiana Family.

Lake Charles, La.—"I don't know what we would have done had we not had Black-Draught. It sure is one of the best medicines made, and an sure the best liver medicine," said Mr. Henry Garrett, of this city.

"My whole family uses it," continued Mr. Garrett. "My wife says she believes she kept off the 'flu' by taking doses of Black-Draught regularly."

"I, myself, use Black-Draught for indigestion, and it is fine."

"We used pills and tablets and other laxatives, but they never seemed to do us good, but the Black-Draught sure has, and it has come to our house to stay. We give it to our daughter for headache and torpid liver."

"I am glad to recommend anything that has been the help to my family that Black-Draught has."

"My present health is good. Have two boxes of Black-Draught in the house now."

If your liver gets out of fix, take Black-Draught. It will help to drive the bile poisons and other unhealthful matters out of your system.

TWO ELECTRIC ROADS GET CHARTER GRANTS

OKLAHOMA CITY.—Two electric railway lines, operating under the same board of directors and each incorporated for $500,000, have been granted charters by the state, according to R. A. Speed, secretary of state.

The first line, to be known as the Oklahoma City-Ada-Atoka Railway company, is to run from Shawnee to Coalgate, a distance of seventy-seven miles. The second line, known as the Oklahoma City-Shawnee Interurban Railway company, will run from Oklahoma City to Shawnee, a distance of thirty-nine miles.

The board of directors for the two companies consists of H. R. Hudson, Ernest Worley, C. A. Birge, G. B. Frost, and E. A. Birge, all of Oklahoma City.

PASS SYSTEM ON STREET RAILWAY

Many Cities in United States Report Use of Pass System.

(By the Associated Press)

ATLANTIC CITY, Oct. 8.—Thirty-five street railway companies in this country are using the weekly pass system, by which passengers are given unlimited numbers of weekly rides for amounts ranging from $1 to $1.75. This was reported to the American Electric Railway Association convention here today.

Cities reported as using the pass were Kenosha and Racine, Wis.; Mason City, Cedar Rapids and Muscatine, Ia.; New Brighton, Pa.; Aurora, Elgin, Chicago, (elevated), Moline, East Moline, and Rock Island, Ill.; New Albany, Fort Wayne and Terre Haute, Ind.; Fort Smith, Ark.; Alliance, O.; Tacoma, Wash.; Houghton, Mich.; Gainesville, Ga.; Everett, Seattle (Interurban line) and Bellingham, Wash.; Paducah, Ky.; Riverside and Pomona, Cal.; Pine Bluff, Ark.; Astoria, Ore.; Dayton, O.; Franklin, Meadville, Tarentum and Oil City, Pa.; San Diego, Cal.; Peekskill, N. Y.; Springfield, Mo.; and Colorado Springs, Colo.

Whether the pass system is an unqualified success the committee was unable to say. It did report, however, that the pass had reduced the cost of rides per passenger, but that it had increased the number of rides. It has been particularly helpful in reducing jitney competition, the report declared.

"Everywhere that the pass has been put into use, so far as the jitney evil is concerned, there has been immediate improvement in conditions," the report said. "The other prominent advantage is that the pass and permit everywhere seem to have created a better sentiment toward the companies employing the experiment."

Other general advantages pointed out by individual companies, but not declared by the committee to be universally true, were speeding up operation, avoiding arguments over fares, stimulating rides in non-rush hours and reducing work for trainmen.

Twenty-one cities reported the cost per ride per passenger under the pass to be from a minimum of 4.6 to a maximum of 8.64 cents. Before the pass was introduced, the range in these same cities was from a minimum of six cents to a maximum of 9.62 cents.

Youngstown, O., abandoned the pass at the request of its street railway commissioner, who wished to charge a flat fare.

The pass idea was brought here from England in 1913, one company trying it that year.

YANKEE PARK IS NEW PLAYGROUND

World Series to be Held in New Structure at New York.

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Part of the world's series this year will be played in baseball's greatest playground, Yankee Stadium, the first wonder of the baseball world, built on the Bronx side of the Harlem river by the New York American League club at an estimated cost of more than $2,500,000.

About ten acres of ground, purchased from the estate of William Waldorf Astor by Colonels T. L. Huston and Jacob Ruppert, then joint owners of the Yankees, were utilized in providing the great stadium. It was said that the ground cost $600,000. Some of the land was filled in, the filling in process at various places serving to keep out the waters of the Harlem, which in years gone by ebbed and flowed over it.

The leveling of the field was completed in 1921 and the construction of the triple deck stand started in the spring of 1922. Sod was hauled from Long Island for the top-cover of the diamond, and dirt suitable for the under-layers transported from distant points.

The triple-deck stand, a novelty in baseball, includes a mezzanine floor. Wide seats, with ample aisle room assure fans a good view of the playing field from every angle. The extreme length and width of the lot is 700 feet, and the area of the playing field 160,000 square feet.

In the construction of the stands 2,500 tons of structural steel, 1,000 tons of reinforcing steel, 30,000 yards of concrete, 2,000,000 board feet of lumber for bleachers and concrete forms, 600,000 lineal feet of lumber for stand chairs, and four miles of iron piping were used.

The seating capacity of the stadium is 62,500, but there is room for many more thousands to stand. The record paid attendance during the past season was recorded on September 16 when 60,331 fans went through the turnstiles.

On dedication day, the opening of the season, the Stadium housed probably its greatest throng, around 70,000. The count at the time was officially announced as 74,217, but later the Yankee management admitted this figure was fictitious, insisting however, that the seating capacity had been exceeded by something close to 10,000.
